

From San Diego, take I-5 South until it ends at the San Ysidro border point. ¶ As you approach the border, move into one of the right lanes, following the sign for "Playas de Tijuana/Rosarito-Ensenada." ¶ Continue through the border in the right-hand lanes under the "Playas de Tijuana/Rosarito Cuota" sign. Use the "Nothing to declare" lanes for the quickest crossing. ¶ Once through the inspection gates, continue following the signs for "Playas de Tijuana/Rosarito-Ensenada," staying in the two lanes veering right up a ramp. ¶ From here the road takes you west along the international border fence, up over a hill and into a canyon. As you drop into the canyon, take the right turn-off heading west to "Playas de Tijuana/Ensenada" and Highway 1. ¶ Stay in the left lane for the rest of your drive, following highway signs for "Rosarito/Ensenada." ¶ You'll pass Playas de Tijuana and come to the first toll booth. Once you pass the toll booth, it's only 55 more kilometers to La Misión. Relax and enjoy the drive along the coast — you've made it past the tricky part! ¶ For the remaining drive, simply follow the highway signs for "Ensenada Cuota" and Highway 1. ¶ You will pass a second toll booth just after Rosarito. From here, it's only 20 to 30 minutes to La Misión. ¶ You'll know you're getting close when you start to descend a large hill with sweeping ocean views. At the bottom of the hill, take the "La Fonda/La Misión" exit and make a left. Poco Cielo is 1/4 mile down the road.
